++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny spells and scattered showers developing, some heavy.

Today:
A mixture of bright or sunny intervals and showers, some of these turning heavy. Longer spells of heavy rain developing across Shetland later. Remaining warmer than of late with a southerly breeze. Low cloud around northeast coasts at times.

Tonight:
Some showers continuing on into the evening in the south. Rain and low cloud taking some time to clear Shetland, strengthening winds in the south.

Tuesday:
Further showers or rain in the north west on Tuesday morning, elsewhere a dry and bright start but showers soon forming, becoming quite cloudy over land with light winds later.

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
A mix of sunshine and showers but often quite cloudy in the far north when winds fall light. Feeling warm when the sun is out.
